This is the thirteenth of a series of new-style county histories which will include all of the 102 counties of Illinois and, ultimately, all of the 3,103 counties in the United States. The project, specializing in aerial photographs of cities, towns, villages and farmsteads and with brief historical narratives added, is known as The American Aerial County History Series.

In the preparation of this work on Piatt County, Illinois, the author and publisher hereby acknowledge their gratitude, for advice and assistance generously given them, to Mr. Joseph C. Wolf and Mrs. Ellen Chase of the Newberry Library, Chicago; to Mr. Herbert H. Hewitt, Mrs. Roberta Sutton and Miss Winifred Baum, all of the Chicago Public Library, Chicago; and to various librarians, public officials, business executives and private citizens of the city of Monticello and the county of Piatt, Illinois. The author also wishes to express special acknowledgment to his wife, Marion Neville Drury, for research, editorial and proof-reading assistance.

Grateful appreciation is also shown here to officials of the Bureau of Public Roads of the U.S. Department of Commerce and to officials of the Department of Public Works & Planning of the State of Illinois (in particular to those in charge of that department's Bureau of Research and Planning in the Highway Department), for permission to use the Piatt County maps included in this book.

Story of Piatt County, Illinois

On a July day in 1858 two rival political candidates for the same office met by coincidence on a lonely rural road just north of Bement, Illinois, and, being good friends outside the realm of politics, stopped and greeted each other. The taller of the two candidates was riding in a run-down prairie schooner and the smaller in an elegant carriage. After the conversation took a serious turn, the two men, in their respective vehicles (which also contained a few of their friends), went to the village of Bement, made an agreement with each other in a small white cottage there --- and, at that moment, also made history.

For the two men were tall, lanky Abraham Lincoln and small, stocky Stephen A. Douglas. And the formal agreement they made that day in the little cottage at Bement was for the staging of a series of seven joint debates in the Illinois senatorial campaign of 1858. As has been well said, those debates "proved to be a large contributing factor in making Lincoln a future President of the United States." If these debates are now well known, not so widely recognized is the fact that they were conceived in Piatt County, Illinois.

Aside from being the place of origin of the great Lincoln-Douglas debates and as the scene of several earlier Lincoln visits, Piatt County today is one of the leading agricultural counties in the vast and fertile Wheat Belt of central Illinois. More than 37 per cent of its total employed persons in 1950 were engaged in agriculture, while but 10.2 per cent were engaged in manufacturing (most of which is done in the county's principal city and seat of justice, Monticello).

Piatt County is also of interest to outsiders for its attractive Robert Allerton Park, a 1,744-acre country estate now owned by the University of Illinois. Located two miles southwest of Monticello on the historic Sangamon River, this park contains not only an impressive residence and other buildings but also numerous formal gardens, wooded tracts, walks and other recreational features.

First Settlers

Recorded as the first permanent settler of what is now Piatt County is George Hayworth, a Quaker from Tennessee. He arrived in 1822 when this region was part of Fayette County. It is said he was sent to the region by the Federal government to make a treaty with Indians of the Kickapoo tribe whereby they would agree to move westward beyond the Mississippi River.

With the assistance of some of these natives, George Hayworth built a log cabin near one of the Indian camps of the area --- a place that afterwards became the city of Monticello. Two years after George Hayworth's arrival, there came to the region Abraham Haneline and his sons, and this family located in the timber on the Sangamon River, a stream which flows through Piatt County. The Hanelines were followed soon afterwards by James and John Martin, who came from Virginia.

James A. Piatt

It was on April 7, 1829, that James A. Piatt, after whom Piatt County is named, settled in the area that now bears his name. A native of Ohio and kinsman of Donn Piatt, celebrated American newspaper editor, James A. Piatt, on his arrival, bought the log cabin home of George Hayworth, the county's first settler. Subsequently, the Piatt cabin became a well known wayside inn for travelers on the trail between Danville and Springfield.

In time, James Piatt was playing an influential role in affairs of the ever-growing number of settlements appearing in the prairie country along the Sangamon. It was in 1837 that he founded the town of Monticello, afterwards to become the seat of Piatt County. He continued to live in his log cabin home until 1838, the year of his death. This was three years before Piatt County was created and named after him.

In a later time the old Piatt cabin was removed from its original site, and, in 1888, set up again in the Piatt County Fairgrounds. Here it was used as a club house by the Old Settlers' Association for many years afterwards. Subsequently, the historic cabin was once more moved, this time to Briar Crest.

Monticello Platted

When James A. Piatt founded the town of Monticello in 1837, associated with him in the project were Abraham Marquis, William Barnes and Major James McReynolds, all of whom were early settlers of the region. Piatt was original owner of the land on which the town was laid out. The new town was named by Major McReynolds after "Monticello," the Virginia country estate of President Thomas Jefferson. Now Piatt County's oldest community, Monticello today has a population of 2,612. It is located on the south side of the Sangamon River in almost the exact geographical center of the country.

Organization of Piatt County

By the year 1841 there were about seven hundred settlers scattered through the region that was soon to become Piatt County. At that time the northern half of this region was in De Witt County and the southern half in Macon County. As there were now enough citizens in the locality to form a new county, petitions to that end were soon in circulation and finally these were presented to the state legislature early in January, 1841.

As a result of this action, the legislature created a new county out of parts of De Witt and Macon counties and named it after James A. Piatt, early settler and founder of Monticello. The enabling act for the creation of Piatt County was signed by Governor Thomas Carlin on January 27, 1841.

First Election

After Monticello was officially designated seat of the new county, Piatt held its first election on April 5, 1841. The three county commissioners chosen at that first election were John Hughes, William Bailey and Enoch Peck. Other county officers elected were: John Piatt, sheriff; Henry Barnes, coroner; John P. Tinbrock, treasurer; James Rever, probate justice of the peace and surveyor; Joseph King, county clerk; and James F. Outten, recorder. At another election held in August of that same year the previously-elected county clerk, Joseph King, was also chosen school commissioner.

"Old Fort"

At first, Piatt County set up a temporary courthouse in Monticello. This is believed to have been a log hotel called the Devore House, which also was referred to "Old Fort." It was in this structure that the first term of the circuit court in Piatt County was held on May 12, 1841, with Samuel H. Treat presiding as judge. By 1843, however, the county had completed its first permanent courthouse, a one-story building of frame construction. A permanent jail was not constructed until 1851.

An Unpopular Lincoln

Several years after the Republican party was founded, Abraham Lincoln appeared in Monticello to deliver a speech on behalf of the new political organization. He was scheduled to talk in the courthouse at Monticello; the one-story edifice built in 1843. But so unpopular was the new party then (1856) that only two men showed up at Lincoln's hotel to escort him to the courthouse. These two men were Ezra Marquis, Sr., and Joseph Guy.

And it was these two men who composed the audience when Lincoln started his speech. But soon word got around town that "Honest Abe" from Springfield was speaking at the courthouse, and gradually a crowd gathered. At the end of his talk, Lincoln had a full house and many more adherents to the new party than when he began his speech.

Bement is Born

Now the second largest town in the county, Bement was platted on January 1, 1855, by Josiah Hunt. It is located about seven miles south of Monticello on the Wabash and Illinois Terminal railroads and on State 105. One of the earliest settlers of Bement was Francis E. Bryant, cousin of the poet, William Cullen Bryant. It was in Francis Bryant's cottage that Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas met for the purpose of arranging the historic Lincoln-Douglas debates of 1858. Still standing today, the Bryant cottage is now a shrine maintained by the State of Illinois. At first, the cottage was presented to the city of Bement by J. F. Sprague, grandson of Francis E. Bryant and one-time mayor of Bement. Then, in 1947, it was acquired by the State of Illinois.

Second Courthouse

By 1856, Piatt County had outgrown its small, one-story courthouse erected in 1843 --- the one in which Lincoln began a speech to an almost empty house. When demands arose for a newer and larger courthouse, the county commissioners voted for such a structure, awarding the contract for building it to George Dempsey and John Lowry. This new courthouse was completed in 1857 at a cost of $12,000. An ornate brick edifice, this second courthouse originally was surmounted by a cupola, but this was destroyed by a storm in 1871 and never replaced. Here, then, the county transacted its business until 1904, when the building was replaced by a larger courthouse. A three-story structure of brick with stone trim, this third courthouse was built at a cost of $80,000. It is still in use today.

Milmine Founded

Another of the older villages of Piatt County is Milmine, which today has a population of 115. It is located on the Wabash and Illinois Terminal railroads. Just north of it meanders the historic Sangamon River. The village was platted and recorded on May 1, 1862, by Enos Farnsworth, an early settler of Cerro Gordo Township. It was at first called Farnsworth, after its founder. Today, Milmine serves as the trading center for a fertile farming region.

CERRO GORDO

Another older village of Piatt County is Cerro Gordo, located in the township of the same name. It was laid out in 1855 by Henry B. Duffy and Sheridan Wait, and was named after a battle in the Mexican war. Today, Cerro Gordo has a population of 1,052. It is situated on the Wabash and the Illinois Terminal railroads.

Robert Allerton Park

One of the most prominent residents of Piatt County during the early years of the present century was Robert Allerton. His country estate on the Sangamon River, two miles southwest of Monticello, was a showplace of central Illinois. Still in existence today, the Allerton estate occupies an area of 1,744 acres and is composed of an imposing mansion and other buildings, as well as numerous formal gardens, wooded tracts, walks and other recreational features. The estate is now the property of the University of Illinois.

Bryant Memorial Cottage

An outstanding sight in Bement today is the Bryant Memorial Cottage, which now is open to the public as a museum. It was in the living room of this cottage that Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas completed, in 1858, arrangements for the series of seven joint debates that played such an important part in the rise of Lincoln to the Presidency of the United States. At that time they were the guests of Francis E. Bryant, cousin of the American poet, William Cullen Bryant, an early settler and banker of Monticello.

Still in the cottage today are the walnut chairs Lincoln and Douglas sat in when they conferred, and the marble-topped table at which they faced each other. The cottage is now maintained as an historic shrine by the State of Illinois. At first, it was presented to the city of Bement by J. F. Sprague, grandson of Francis E. Bryant and one-time mayor of Bement. Then, in 1947, it was acquired by the State of Illinois.

Piatt County Today

On the basis of latest United States census figures, Piatt County in 1950 had a total population of 13,970 --- which in population rank placed it 1,928th among the 3,103 counties of the United States. Its principal city and county seat, Monticello, had a total population of 2,612, an increase of 3.5 per cent over the 1940 population. Having a land area of 437 square miles, the county's density of population was 32 inhabitants per square mile.

Of Piatt's total population, 5,997 were classified as rural non-farm dwellers, 5,361 as rural farm residents, and 2,612 as urban dwellers (most of whom lived in Monticello). In 1950 there were 8,925 potential voters in the county. In that year, too, the county had 1,462 infants under five years of age, and 1,678 persons sixty-five years old and over; the median age was given as 31.3 years.

Under the heading of vital statistics, 295 babies were born, 157 deaths occurred (11 of them infants), and 126 marriages were performed. The number of families (two or more persons related by marriage or blood) in the county in 1950 was 3,645, and the median income of all of these families that year was $2,902. The figures showed further that 29.1 per cent of all families had an income of less than $2,000 and 19.0 per cent had an income of $5,000 or more.

In 1950 Piatt County had a potential labor force of 10,282 (persons fourteen years old and over) and 5,070 were actually employed. Of the latter number, most were engaged in agriculture (1,845), and the next largest group (770) were engaged in wholesale and retail trade. Slightly more than 500 were engaged in manufacturing.

In the field of housing, the county had 4,266 dwelling units in 1940 and 4,476 in 1950. The median number of rooms per unit was 5.7. More than 92 per cent of the houses in 1950 were one-dwelling unit detached structures, 44.9 per cent had hot running water with private toilet and bath, 57.1 were owner occupied, 33 per cent had central heating, 84.1 per cent had mechanical refrigerators and 97.5 per cent had radios. The median value of all non-farm dwelling units in the county was given as $5,398.

When the last United States business census was taken in 1948, there were 176 retail stores in Piatt County, and the sales for that year amounted to $9,939,000. The largest group among retail establishments were food stores, which numbered 38 and which grossed $2,274,000. The next largest group were eating and drinking places, which numbered 31 and which grossed $831,000. There were 54 wholesale establishments in the county in 1948 and sales amounted to $17,878,000.

In the field of manufacturing, Piatt County had, in 1947 (when such figures were last obtained), a total of 14 manufacturing establishments, and these produced goods and materials in the amount of $2,204,000. They employed 307 workers.

In 1950 there were 1,214 farms in the county, of which 1,127 were classified as commercial farms. The average value of land and buildings per farm for all farms was given as $80,428. In 1949 the value of farm products sold (crops, livestock, poultry, dairy products) was $11,109,000. Farm expenditures in 1949 were $1,022,900 for livestock and poultry feed, and $787,000 for hired help.

CITY • f MONTICELLO

Oldest and largest city of Piatt County, as well as that county's seat of justice, is Monticello. In 1950 it had a population of 2,612 --- an increase of 3.5 per cent over its 1940 population. The city is located on the Illinois Central, the Wabash and the Illinois Terminal railroads, as well as on State 105.

Largely a residential community, Monticello has as one of its principal sights the Piatt County Courthouse. A three-story edifice of brick with stone trim, it was built in 1904 at a cost of $80,000. Two miles southwest of Monticello is located Robert Allerton Park, a former estate now owned by the University of Illinois. Another park, maintained by the county, is situated two miles northeast of Monticello.

The city was founded in 1837 by James A. Piatt, early settler after whom the county is named. Associated with him in the project were Abraham Marquis, William Barnes and Major James McReynolds. The new town was named after "Monticello," the Virginia country estate of President Thomas Jefferson. Today, the city is the only community in Monticello Township, which has a total population of 3,245.

I V E S D A L E

Part of the village of Ivesdale lies in Bement Township. It is located at the eastern border of Piatt County on the Wabash Railroad. Main part of Ivesdale is situated in adjoining Champaign County.

MANSFIELD

In the north portion of Piatt County, on the Wabash and New York Central railroads, lies the incorporated village of Mansfield, with a present population of 665. Through it runs US 150. The village was laid out on April 25, 1870, by General John L. Mansfield, an early settler of the region. Mansfield is the principal community in Blue Ridge Township, with a total population of 1,504.

HARRIS

Another community in Blue Ridge Township is the hamlet of Harris. It is located on the New York Central Railroad. The hamlet serves as a trading center for the farming community surrounding it.

BLUE RIDGE

Also in Blue Ridge Township is another hamlet, Blue Ridge. It is situated on the Wabash Railroad and is served by the post-office at nearby Mansfield. Just north of it is McLean County and eastward is Champaign County.

CERRO GORDO

Third largest town in Piatt County is Cerro Gordo, with a 1950 population of 1,052. It is located in the southwestern portion of the county on the Wabash and Illinois Terminal railroads and on State 105. The town was platted on October 3, 1855, by Sheridan Wait and Henry B. Duffy, early settlers of the region. It was named after a battle in the Mexican War. Cerro Gordo is the principal community of Cerro Gordo Township, with a total population of 2,240.
